Pandora Jorgensen-Heathcoe

Pandora Heathcoe is a founding partner of Bohemian LA Productions, LLC located in Silverhill, Alabama. Moving to the Eastern Shore from Wisconsin in 1965 at the age of seven, Pandora has experienced its growth over the past 51 years. Coming from artistic parents and heritage, Pandora believes in the creative community and the many opportunities it offers its citizens.

After graduation, Pandora immediately began her career in Finance and Human Resources along with fund raising and other community oriented organizations. Pandora has 38+ years in Finance, Human Resources and Business Management; both in the public and private sector. However, it is through her work with various charities that Pandora began her passion of community awareness and education.

Having begun writing early in high school, Pandora has written a book of poetry and a cookbook both of which are currently in editing and proofing stage with a publisher. Pandora is currently working on a literary piece focusing on WWII, the Danish Resistance and the plight of Danish Jews during the occupation. This piece is based upon Pandora's Danish family heritage.

Pandora is also currently filming and completing three documentaries; in both 2015 & 2016 she has been a film reviewer for two film festivals that features over 1,200 films; volunteered for the Fairhope Film Festival and has 5+ years' experience working with multiple local charities and fundraising committees. Also she is continuing her passion for AIDS awareness and education through both fundraising and a current documentary being filmed in collaboration with Peter Freestone.

Pandora graduated from the University of Phoenix in 2013 with an AAB/BS in Business Management and Human Resources. She and her husband reside in Silverhill, Alabama and are owners of a custom motorhome truck conversion company that supplies custom trucks and trailers to various industries for film editing rooms, porta-potties, catering vehicles, traveling offices and actors/models dressing rooms.